

CAREER GUIDE

Get hired by Australian brands

Right channels. Right profile. Real opportunities.

• PH focus

Breaking into the Australian market takes two things: targeting the right channels, and tailoring your profile to what Aussie employers value most. That means reliability, clear communication and a process-oriented way of working. Here are four ways to position yourself.

✦ Four ways to stand out

1

Target AU-focused remote platforms

Skip the generic global queues and focus where Australian employers actively look, alongside JobStreet and Indeed.

Platforms to try: Remote Staff, VirtualStaff365, Flat Planet, JobStreet and Indeed.

2

Use LinkedIn with precision

Set your location or headline to show you are open to international clients.

Search terms: "Operations Manager Australia", "Founder Sydney or Melbourne", "Australian outsourcing".

3

Highlight day-shift and stability

Australian businesses value consistency. State clearly on your resume if you are comfortable with standard Aussie hours, typically a 6:00 AM to 8:00 AM PHT start.

4

Match the culture

Australian workplaces tend to be egalitarian, direct and pragmatic. Be confident, solve problems and keep it professional and warm.

Good vibes. Real conversations.

PRO TIP

Reliability wins Australian clients. In your resume and interviews, give concrete examples of meeting deadlines and following through, not just a list of skills.

I put "comfortable with AWST hours" and a couple of clear examples of hitting deadlines on my resume. An Australian client reached out within two weeks.
